

Elvis

You work as an Elvis impersonator at the Paramount, the largest and most extravagant casino on the Las Vegas strip. Although your real name is Merl Mortensen, everyone knows you as Elvis. You took on the identity of Elvis in order to get past the Nevada Gaming Commission because they do not allow convicted criminals to work in casinos. Since you have spent some time in jail, you thought your best option in order to get a job in a casino would be to apply as someone else (Elvis) and it worked. As a casino employee, you perform every night in the lounge as Elvis.

Amazingly, you have managed to keep your past a secret from everyone, including your girlfriend, Lucy Legs, a show girl at the Paramount. As the two of you get more serious, you continually worry about handling her questions regarding your past. In particular, you are cautious about committing to marriage because you are uncertain about how Lucy will react when she finds out about your criminal past. Once you are assured that Lucy will never find out about you were once a convict, you plan to propose.

In addition to being a performer, you are also a licensed wedding officiant and have been performing marriages for couples (as Elvis) for additional income. Late last night, you married Ace High and Hustling Hailey (two gamblers) in the Paramount Casino Chapel. As your former cell mate in prison, Ace High is the only person in Las Vegas who knows of your criminal past and you were frightened when he almost told his new wife, Hailey, how the two of you first met. Thankfully, he did not.

Although you were once great friends with Ace High, lately you have tried to keep your distance from him due to his criminal past. Ace High has been convicted of embezzlement, is a great con artist and a highly skilled thief. Once, he embezzled enough money that he was able to fund a political candidate for the Senate. Coincidentally, the Paramount Casino has reported missing funds lately. Certain that Ace is somehow behind the missing money, you worry about losing your job due to your acquaintance with Ace. Earlier this week, Ronald Trump (the casino owner) sent out a memo to all casino employees threatening to fire and prosecute anyone associated with the missing money.

Regardless of the missing funds scandal, you are excited about the Paramount Casino Anniversary Party! You always love a good party and there should be a good crowd to perform for. Your girlfriend, Lucy Legs, also seems very excited about the party and you hope that the party lives up to both of your expectations.

Acting and Dressing Your Part: Come dressed as Elvis, for no one EVER sees you out of your stage costume. A wig, flashy, sequined jumpsuit, sunglasses and sideburns are a must. For more information and ideas on how to dress for your night at The Paramount Casino, please see www.nightofmystery.com or www.murderinsincity.com
